We all speak only in light now-- the one holdout, a professor at the Polytechnic who claimed audible speech should be preserved the way things are in a museum sentenced to lose his tongue.

The judge's opinion, while harsh, was brilliant, literally.